

DIPLOMA TIME; SENIORS READY

"Our Town"
J. B. WHITE

The magic winds of bigger and better business are now touching the cheeks of old Ben Milam. A lesson in streamlining the lucrative benefits of "public service" has just been given the staid and time honored slow motion county government. This stimulating revelation is found in the records of the Commissioners' Court which within recent weeks awarded a contract, without bids, for the collection of an estimated $150,000 in delinquent taxes.

The office of the Attorney General of Texas by reason of a "close opinion" fits beneficially into the local picture which excludes all save lawyers from entering into a contract with county and state for the collection of delinquent taxes. Wide discretionary powers of the County and District Attorney authorized by statute, were also helpful in a "closer collaboration" to exclude all save a person or persons residing within the county from contracting the job. The surprising feature of the action is the fact that the deal involving potentially $19,500 in collection fees was made without prospecting for a more advantageous price by calling for bids.

One simply cannot imagine a depression ridden legal fraternity not being interested in a luscious $19,500 plum. This is not to say that the Commissioners' court sought to individualize its award, nor to imply that legal ethics have reached the point of asking for business, but it does occur as logical that the spirit of competition might have saved the county some money. This thought comes home substantially to the small-fry publishing fraternity of the county when we recall with "righteous approbation" that any purchase above $50 must be submitted to bids.

Tax collection contracts have become a rich source of income throughout Texas. Laws and opinions governing this magic path to the public treasury are too often conceived in the so-called "third" house of the Legislature. Their advantage to restricted sources may well be accounted for in the narrow confines of succeeding decisions and enactments.

In times past the county has handled the problem of delinquent taxes by the employment of an attorney at a stipulated salary. Available figures show that approximately $40,000 per year in delinquent taxes are paid voluntarily over the counter at the office of the tax collector. Under the existing contract made by agreement with the district attorney, $5,200 will accrue to the collector. Touching the major aspect of the question it will be necessary for the contractor to enter suit occasionally and to prepare numerous statements. The rate specified in the contract is 13 per cent, approximately the usual fee prescribed in such contracts. If any criticism is due, it goes to the Commissioners' Court for having failed to shop with the view of economizing on a deal of such magnitude. It may be that the somnambulant type of public responsibility existing in the average county which keeps up its political prestige in the non-disturbing atmosphere of singing conventions and rural back-slapping, is due for an exhilarating awakening to the possibilities of big business, now operating with alluring progression that generates its most effective elements in the magic cultivation of fruitful opportunities such as only the public service can offer.

Under any system where a conception of public duty retains any of its old flavor the delinquent tax collecting job is a matter of co-operation between the office of the County and District Attorney and the Tax Collector. Long ago the political dynamite awaiting any public official who made the faithful come

Life Saving Medal Goes to Moseley

Courage and heroism have had their rewards in every age of the world.

Recognition, often delayed, is in evitable tribute to those, who by reason of their unselfish service to others, challenge the admiration of the people.

Cameron has witnessed many striking examples of personal heroism but none more challenging than that of November 3, 1934, when Earl Moseley, lineman for the Texas Power & Light Company, saved the life of Jimmie Angel, Jr., as he lay enmeshed in a high voltage wire that had fallen from a nearby pole.

Mr. Moseley's services were recently applauded by the Cameron Fire Department for his aid in cases of fire and removing of electrical wires, was presented the John W. Carpenter medal on Friday night at an employees' safety meeting of the company held in the Chamber of Commerce room.

The medal is made of gold and is known as the John W. Carpenter medal bearing the name of the president of this Texas corporation and is given where lives are saved by the prone pressure method of artificial resuscitation. This method of life saving is very effective. The injured person is placed face downward, the operator pressing the body at breathing intervals for artificial respiration.

The medal is fully inscribed and bears the name of John W. Carpenter and the emblem of the Texas Power & Light Company which is

Rights May Be Lost Under New Trends

The problems of administrative law and abuses growing out of delegation of authority to boards and bureaus not contemplated in original conception of the government, with the resulting loss of rights of the individual and those of business was discussed by Mose G. Cox before the Cameron Rotary Club on Wednesday, May 18. Mr. Cox read the following paper:

It has been said there is nothing new under the sun. Encroachment by the executive head of a nation upon judicial and legislative powers, which should be exercised by other departments of government, is as old as history itself, and our forefathers achieved, upon bloody battlefields and at great cost in life and treasure, the separation of powers of government under three departments, Executive, Legislative and Judicial, establishing our Government with the understanding that neither should exercise any of the powers vested in the other, because the centralization of all powers in one is the very essence of tyranny and would destroy the most precious personal and property rights reserved in the Bill of Rights of our Federal and State Constitutions. This prohibition is expressed in the Texas Constitution, but only implied in that of the United States. That it is only implied in the latter is regrettable, since what is merely implied may be construed not to exist.

As civilization becomes more and more complex, it is impossible for an Executive to perform all his duties without creating other administrative agencies, and, it being impossible for those making laws to provide

Charges Are Filed Against Houston Man For Theft by Bailee

D. P. O'Brien of Houston was placed under arrest Tuesday night at a local carnival and has been charged with theft by bailee.

O'Brien was arrested on complaint filed by F. F. Reid, a Cameron grocer, who said that O'Brien had taken an adding machine from his store to make repairs and had not returned it. The arrest was made by deputy city marshals, Dan Lunsford and John Eans. Officers said that O'Brien had sold the adding machine to B. Eixman, a local cafe owner. Investigation has developed that O'Brien had sold a typewriter to Mrs. Bennie Winfield.

In making his rounds he claimed to be a typewriter and adding machine repair man and used this pretext to get possession of the machines which he later sold.

through with tax payments was negated by passing the buck. Under the modern system of contracting everybody who runs for office can escape the responsibility for anything that may happen. For years the city of Cameron maintained a standing opportunity with the payment of 10 per cent on delinquent tax collections with little or no action being required to speed up payment.

NEGLIAGO PITCHING STAR HERE SUNDAY

A surprise performance from the mound is in store for baseball fans here Sunday when the Cameron All Stars play the Belton Woodmen in the second meeting of these two teams this year.

F. E. Jackson, manager of the local team, announced Wednesday that Luke Negliago of Bryan, high school pitching star, will report here for the game Sunday. He is a left hander and is under the watchful eye of Homer Peel, manager of the Shreveport club in the Texas League. The Bryan High School star has been asked to stand by and be in readiness to report to the Shreveport club. Mr. Jackson hopes to retain him for the local club until he is called in for service to the Texas League.

In addition to the Bryan star Mr. Jackson says they will have in readiness on the side lines Agricola, a veteran of the West Texas League. This will give the Cameron club a formidable pitching line-up when they meet the Belton Woodmen at the Lawless Green athletic field here Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Blanche Williams and Mrs. Willie Oneal of Georgia, visited their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Oneal for several days.

Harold Pressley Gets Rotary Award Wednesday

Harold Pressley, honor graduate of the senior class of 1939 and valedictorian, was paid a high tribute Wednesday at noon when he became the first student to receive the annual Rotary Club award of a gold wrist watch.

The Cameron Rotary Club last year shortly after its organization, established this award to be made annually to the most outstanding student of Yoe High School.

Harold received this award at the conclusion of an interesting program at which R. H. Brister, superintendent of Waco Public Schools was the principal speaker. Dr. Clifford Swift, president of the Rotary Club, outlined briefly the basis on which this award was made and in presenting the award said, "Harold, we find in you all of the qualifications, to a high degree, set out in the fundamental merits by which the gradine was done. We feel that you have earned this award and we congratulate you and the club on the occasion which brings us together and enables us to thus recognize your outstanding student life."

When Dr. Swift had concluded presentation of the watch, Harold expressed his appreciation.

Farm Income May Reach $912,000 Here

Farmers of Milam County are in a position to earn approximately $912,000 in AAA benefit payments by participating to the fullest possible extent in the 1939 farm program, according to the local Agricultural Administration.

About $607,000 of this amount, is offered to "Conservation" payment, designed to reward farmers for soil conservation accomplished through adjustment of soil-depleting acreage, and for carrying out approved soil building practices such as terracing, strip cropping, seeding legumes, establishing pastures and planting green manure crops and cover crops.

The other $305,000 of the estimated total for the county, is the maximum amount that can be derived through "parity" or "price adjustment" payments on cotton and wheat. The parity payment is so named because it is designed, as near as possible with the funds available, to make up the difference between the market price and the parity price of the given crop.

These two sets of payments are calculated according to two slightly different sets of rules.

DELINQUENT TAX DEAL IS $19,500.00 FEE BONANZA

The commissioners' court has awarded contract to Emory B. Camp, former criminal district attorney, to collect delinquent taxes. The contract runs for twenty months and Mr. Camp is to receive thirteen per cent of the total amount of taxes paid into the office of the collector after he has mailed notices to all those delinquent.

Mr. Camp has employed four workers, one of whom is Charles C. Smith, Jr., assistant to W. A. (Bill) Morrison, criminal district attorney. Other employees are Mrs. Juanita Lyons, Miss Billie Marak and Miss Snithie Ritchie of Buckholts.

Mr. Camp is required under terms of the contract to pay all expenses incidental to collection and to pay all employees enlisted to complete collection of delinquent taxes. The tax collector and his office force will be required to do a great deal of work also in the matter of issuing receipts and determining years of delinquency to insure proper clearing of the records.

It is estimated that there is now outstanding on the delinquent tax rolls of Milam county approximately $150,000 in unpaid taxes. Mr. Camp will receive $19,500 for this job. It is said that approximately $40,000 a year in delinquent taxes are paid in Milam county voluntarily by those who owe them. Mr. Camp will receive thirteen per cent on voluntary payments as well as in all cases where suit is brought or much time is spent in adjusting individual cases.

Mr. Camp has set up in his law office in Cameron a complete system of bookkeeping and records and is preparing to send out notices within the next few days to all those who owe taxes.

the map of Texas on which is written the motto "Service First." Beneath this the life saver is shown demonstrating the prone pressure method of resuscitation. On one side is the name of Earl Moseley and the date November 3, 1934.

Mr. Moseley, modest and reluctant to discuss his feat of heroism, detailed for the Herald a short account of what occurred on the day he saved the life of Jimmie Angell.

"It so happened that I was the only outside employee in town that day when the call came for help. I was also without a car. John C. Young who was manager of the company and under whom I served as head lineman, was out of town, using one of our cars and the other car was in Buckholts on a service job. The call came in from Bass Brock at the Boedeker gin. He said that someone was caught and held by a high voltage wire near the gin plant and asked me to come as quickly as possible. I hurriedly borrowed an automobile from Franklyn Dusek at his pharmacy and beat the ambulance to where little Jimmie lay enmeshed in the wire.

"When I reached him he was lying on his back. The wire had not touched the ground and was being blown by the wind. Each time it moved to within striking distance of his feet the current would go through his body and sparks would fly from the wire. I watched the wire swing away from his feet then quickly jerked him from the death trap, rolled him over on his face and began applying the prone pressure method of artificial respiration. At first I could detect no results. I continued to work with him for 45 minutes before he showed any evidence of life. When he began to breathe I assisted him further with this method of artificial respiration. We then placed him in the ambulance and took him to the hospital.

"When I first reached Jimmie, as I said, he was lying on his back. He was badly burned. When I rolled him over the flesh on his back and at the rear of his neck and head stuck to the ground.

"It was a hot day, although early in November and the wind was blowing fairly strong. The wire had fallen on a heavy growth of weeds near the gin and had not made any ground connection. If the wire had touched the ground, it would have blown the transformer and no danger would have been present. Jimmie and a number of boy companions were playing near the pole and Jimmie ran into the wire, was knocked down and trapped by the voltage. The boys were playing ball.

"Just after I reached Jimmie his clothing caught fire but I extinguished the blaze. The accident occurred on Saturday afternoon. Having no time to disconnect the wires I soon saw that danger was too near to permit the people now gathering in large numbers to come near the scene of the accident. I called on Jim Perkins and Sam McDermott and others standing by to keep people back so they would not get on the wires. It was my first opportunity to try out the life-saving methods taught by my company and I was very happy when I saw the good results."

Jimmie Angell at the time of the accident was eight years old. He was a patient in the hospital for many months. He is now thirteen years old and weighs 155 pounds, is a freshman in high school being in the eighth grade.

The company paid damages in the sum of $16,000 to the boy because of his injuries. Mr. Moseley has been employed by the Texas Power & Light Company since April 27, 1927.

Only one other such award has been made here and that to Floyd Stapleton several years ago who saved the life of a woman, who had been dragged from the river. She had been swimming and might have lost her life by drowning if Mr. Stapleton had not applied the prone pressure method of artificial resuscitation.

At the employees' meeting on Friday night Jimmie Angell was a guest. Company officials from Dallas present were Walter Blair who made a talk on safety, J. E. Blaine and Roy Dishman, field men who attend safety meetings. The medal was presented to Mr. Moseley by F. E. Woodruff, local manager.

Farm Income

Committee, makes the following explanation of how these payments are made.

Conservation Payments

The conservation payment is 2 cents a pound on cotton, 17 cents a bushel on wheat, tentatively $90 an acre, adjusted up or down according to the farm's productivity index on general crops.

The rates on cotton and what apply to the normal yield of the farm's cotton or wheat allotment, however the case may be. It is figured by multiplying the payment rate, times the normal yield established for the farm, times the acreage allotment.

For example, if a farmer has a 1939 cotton allotment of 20 acres and the normal yield established for his farm is 200 pounds of lint cotton per acre, the payment is 2 cents a pound on 4,000 pounds (20x200) or $80.

A similar example would hold in the case of wheat.

"The rate on general crops applies to the number of acres in the general allotment.

Soil Building Payments

A part of the conservation payment is in the form of assistance for carrying out soil-building practices. Each practice is measured in units. For example, construction of 200 lineal feet of terrace counts as one unit; seeding an acre of alfalfa qualifies as two units; and an acre of green manure or cover crops rates as one unit. And the rate of payment, or assistance, for carrying out such practices is $1.50 a unit.

However, each farm is given a maximum soil building allowance. That is, the farmer is paid at the $1.50 rate up to a certain limit, the limit varying according to the farm.

Parity Payments

In addition to the conservation payments, the 1939 program provides for price adjustment or "parity payments" of 1.6 cents a pound on cotton, and 11 cents a bushel on wheat.

The rate applies to the number of acres in the 1939 allotment for the given crop.

Example: If a farmer's cotton acreage allotment is 20 acres, and the normal yield established for his farm is 200 pounds an acre, the cotton price adjustment payment is 1.6 cents a pound on 4,000 pounds or $64.

A similar example would apply for wheat.

If the farmer exceeds his allotment by any fraction of an acre, he forfeits a right to any parity payment on the crop.

5 Years Suspended Sentence for Robbing Box Car Here

Jack Wilkerson is free on a five year suspended sentence following his plea of guilt in district court here. Wilkerson was charged with robbing a box car on the Santa Fe tracks near the warehouse of the McLane Wholesale Grocery firm. Wilkerson was arrested when he took the flour to a local grocery store to exchange it for other merchandise. His claim was that he had purchased the flour in the store the day previous and when it was proven that he did not make the purchase as claimed, he was reported to officers.

In the absence of Rev. A. J. McCary, who was ill Sunday night, Rev. Glenn Flinn of Dallas delivered the sermon.

Cattle Thief and Ex-Convict Gets 5 Years in Prison

W. H. Beebe entered a plea of guilt in district court here Thursday on a charge of cattle theft and was sentenced to five years in state penitentiary.

Beebe, ex-convict, was arrested in July 1938 for theft of three cows, one each from Roy Newton, R. B. Mayes and Oliver Franklin, a negro, all of Maysfield. Beebe took the stolen cattle to Waco and sold them. He was arrested shortly thereafter at his home in Cedar Springs, Falls county by Deputy Sheriff Clarence McCall.

Only a few weeks after Beebe had been placed in jail he escaped by sawing his way out and was again arrested on April 26, 1939 at Groesbeck.

Suspended Sentence While Driving Car Intoxicated

Bill Sammon of Cameron is free under a two year suspended sentence on a plea of guilt that he drove his car while intoxicated. Driver's license were revoked for six months. This is one of a number of similar cases originating in Milam county but thus far only suspended sentences have been imposed on those who have been found guilty of driving while intoxicated.

A Graduate To-Day What About Tomorrow

Another year . . . another group of young graduates about to matriculate in the largest and toughest school in the world . . . that of experience. May we add our voice to the chorus of well-wishers and at the same time tender a bit of sound, proven advice? Though we wish every graduate complete success in his future, we know that most of you will have to save to get the things you want from life, rather than being so fortunate as to have them given you. For this reason we urge every grad to open an account NOW . . . and add to it regularly—no matter how small the amounts.

1939 GAS RANGES ARE COOLER

Because of heavy oven insulation which keeps heat in the oven out of your kitchen the 1939 gas range is cooler-cooking. Accurate oven heat control, too, helps keep kitchen cooler because it eliminates opening oven door to watch progress of cooking. Then there's the new separate broiler compartment which does away with using oven burner for broiling. And most important are the new low-heat simmer burners which contribute much toward kitchen comfort. With these burners food is kept boiling with minimum heat, causing little vapor and steam to rise!

Don't go through another summer in an uncomfortable kitchen. Trade your old range for one of these cool-cooking modern gas ranges. Your meals will be easier prepared in a cooler kitchen at less cost.

A wedding of more than usual interest linking two of Cameron's most popular young lives, representing outstanding families of Milam county, occurred on Wednesday morning, May 17, 1939, at beautiful St. Monica's Catholic Church when Miss Vida Graham and Joe Gerick, Jr., were married by the ancient nuptial Mass of the church with Rev. Father Pat O'Riley of Temple reading the ritual. The wedding, outstanding for its solemn beauty in St. Monica's, celebrated for its exquisite architectural design, found many friends and invited guests crowding the full capacity of the church. The bride beautifully dressed in a flowing white satin evening gown with fitted bodice trimmed in buttons to the waist line and a full skirt with a train over which she wore a wedding veil and carrying a bouquet of white roses, entered the church with her father to be met at the altar by the groom. Attendants who took their place in the form of an arch in the altar of the church resplendent in beautiful lilies and ferns were Mrs. K. W. Hayes of Caldwell, matron of honor who entered with Herman Gerick, brother of the groom and best man. Mrs. Mayes was dressed in a green organdy evening dress and carried a bouquet of talisman roses. Miss Frances Gerick and Miss Mary Louise La Cook of Ad Hall, both attractively gowned in pink organdy and carrying bunches of pink roses were bridesmaids. They were accompanied by Alfred Gerick and Byron Graham who were ushers for the wedding. The two girls, little Misses Jane Marie Hayes and Jo Anne Hughes were dressed in yellow organdy and carried green baskets. The groom as well as the best man and ushers wore dark suits. Following the ceremony an 11 o'clock wedding breakfast and reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Graham of Cameron. The home was beautifully decorated throughout and the spacious dining room was especially attractive as the newlyweds and their families together with close friends ate of the feast. Immediately following the breakfast the couple left for a short wedding trip to San Antonio. For her going-away dress the bride chose a sheer navy blue of simple and becoming lines with matching accessories. Mrs. Gerick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.

E. Graham of Cameron, was reared here and is popular among a large circle of friends in this community. She is a graduate of Yoe High School having been a member of the senior class of 1937, and later attended Asbury College in Wilmore, Kentucky. Mr. Gerick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe L. Gerick of Ad Hall and is also a graduate of Yoe High School having been a senior in the class of 1933. He later attended Draughon's Business College in Fort Worth. He is a prominent citizen of his community and among other activities in which he takes part is his work on the board of trustees for the Ad Hall school. For the past year or more he has been employed by the Texas Power & Light Company here. Mr. and Mrs. Gerick were complimented with a number of miscellaneous showers preceding their wedding and on Sunday were the honor guests at a dinner given in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe L. Gerick of Ad Hall. Other guests were parents of Mr. Gerick, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Pumpheer and Byron Graham of Cameron. Mr. and Mrs. Gerick will be at home in the A. R. O'Neal apartments on North Travis Street.

Miss Jenette McIntyre was hostess to a party of thirteen friends, all members of the 1939 graduating class, at the home of her grandmother. Miss Jenette McIntyre was hostess urday for a luncheon. The home was attractively decorated and lunch was served to the following girls: Misses Dorothy Perkins, Mary Ellen Cottle, Lucy Turner, Norma Jean McElwath, Patsy Reaves, Maxine Akers, Caroline Chambers, Charlotte Stidham, Nila Faye Allen, Nell Vaughn, Dorothy Jean Lewis, Virginia Smith, Harriett Atkinson and Miss McIntyre. The party later made a trip to Belton where they enjoyed swimming.

Election of officers was held at the regular meeting of Eastern Star Tuesday evening, May 22, as follows: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Margaret Burke; Worth Patron, Niley Smith; Associate Matron, Miss Annie Woolley; Associate Patron, Jeff T. Kemp; Conductress, Mrs. Nadine Sapp; Associate Conductress, Mrs. T. E. Crump; Secretary, Will Stafford; Treasurer, Mrs. Nettie Storey. At the close of the business session, Miss Delpha Scott, in the name of the Chapter, presented Mrs. Gladys Watson pianist for the Chapter, who is leaving soon for her new home, a handsome hand-made Book, bearing the colors and emblems of the Star Points, with a lovely collection of handkerchiefs, gifts of the members of the chapter, and a handsome bouquet of gladiolas, given in a small way of expressing their esteem and appreciation of her splendid work in the chapter, which was in serving them from the lowest office up to the greatest office to be given by a local chapter. This came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Watson, who in a most appreciative manner, thanked her givers, expressing regret she feels over leaving the chapter, thanked all for the many expressions of esteem. The outgoing worthy matron, Mrs. W. G. Harsha fashioned the beautiful book and the unique manner each gift was displayed with the beautiful message given by each friend. Mrs. Harsha has been the capable and much admired worthy matron for the past year. The installation of the newly elected officers will be Monday evening, June 5, at 8 o'clock at the Masonic Hall. It will be a public installation and all Masons and their families are cordially invited to attend, and those who feel interested in the order are included in the invitation. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

The Young Women's Auxiliary of the Baptist Church held its regular meeting at the home of Dorothy Kidd on Tuesday, May 18. Plans were discussed for the next meeting which will be in the form of a steak fry. After the business session, a splendid program, planned by Mrs. Woodrow Lowe was given. Ray Fanning gave the devotional; Arnette Ryan, a lovely piano selection, and Mrs. Lowe gave an appropriate reading. During the social hour games were played honoring Ethel Ekelton who is to wed J. A. Bialkowski in the near future. The hostess served refreshments of peppermint ice cream and cake and presented a gold compact daintily tied in white with sweetheart roses from the YWA. Miss Skelton has been a loyal and devoted member of the YWA and every wish for her happiness follows her to Colombia where Mr. Bialkowski is construction engineer employed by the Texas Company.

Mrs. Milna Ramsouer returned last week from St. Louis where she spent six weeks with her sister, Mrs. Joe B. Kruesch and husband. Mrs. Kruesch will be remembered before her marriage at Miss Ida Woolley.

And they can still go right on serving hearty, varied meals—3 times a day! If you are in business in Cameron you should know this—that they follow Herald ads BEFORE they "go to market!" Maybe your car doesn't squeak

... NOW!

BUT IT WILL, one of these days, if it's not properly lubricated. And the squeak, as the doctors say, is a symptom, not the disease . . . which, in the case of an automobile, is the wear of friction . . . which results in inefficient, frequently unsafe operation of your car and sometimes heavy repair bills . . . An ounce of prevention, you'll agree, is well worth the pound of cure, so it's a good idea to have your car lubricated — properly lubricated, that is—at regular intervals. Your automobile manufacturer agrees with us in that statement, as a look at his instruction book shows . . . You will find the prescription for your possible lubrication ailments in the experience of literally thousands of fellow motorists throughout the state: at the end of every 1,000 miles of driving, on an average, take your car to the nearest Humble Service Station and have it lubricated according to the Humble chart . . . Every Humble Service Station is fully equipped with modern tools to do the work and completely stocked with the necessary lubricants, and station men have been carefully trained . . . Chances are, your car needs Humble charted lubrication now: stop at the nearest Humble sign — today — and get the job done.

vide for every contingency, which may arise, they confer upon these Executive-Administrative Boards the power to themselves make laws, rules and regulations, within limits of broad powers granted. Because of necessity, it is now settled that legislative power can be delegated to such boards, who have both executive and legislative power, and many boards, both in our state and nation, are vested with judicial power.

In America today we are beginning to follow the example of England, France and other Old World Nations by enacting "social legislation," touching the conduct of the citizen from the cradle to the grave, and in matters heretofore deemed free from governmental interference under the Bill of Rights of our Federal and State Constitutions. This tendency is fraught with grave consequences, for it would be possible, if upheld by the courts, to change our Democratic processes and create a totalitarian nation or state, with all powers vested in various boards, appointed perhaps for political reasons to carry out certain policies or "isms," and accountable only to one Supreme Executive.

In many instances it is provided that their fact findings shall be binding upon the courts, and they consider, whether offered in evidence or not, their own supposedly expert knowledge of the subject under consideration, hearsay testimony, and other testimony not admissible in courts, and in some instances they are not required to make statements of fact and conclusions of law to show why they decide as they do.

Many branches of law develop without being influenced or distorted by the convictions or political experiments of those in temporary charge of government, as said by Justice Frankfurter, "without being distorted by political feelings;" but, "administrative law is enmeshed in affairs of government," and "the failure, with rare exceptions, to give it self-conscious direction has greatly hampered the effective response of society to some of its most exigent problems." Since "those processes of government which are the stuff of administrative law" are largely within the exclusive control of whatever political party may be in charge of the government at any given time, there is danger that administrative law may not be as fixed and stable as it should for the fair and impartial decision of "controversies over a vast and sensitive range of human interests." It is hard to see how, as Senator Burke says, "even handed justice can be expected to come from a body composed of men who are partisan advocates of one side of every cause that comes before it."

Under the Wagner Act, it seems the Board is to investigate violations, bring complaints accusing persons or corporations of wrong-doing, and then don judicial robes and pass upon the guilt of those whom it has charged with violating the law.

Justice Frankfurter states the problems involved in conferring judicial, executive and legislative powers upon one or more boards, under control of the Chief Executive, as being the following: "The wise extent of such commitments, how they were to be circumscribed, the means for their supervision, how to assure adequate administrators, the relation of administrative agencies to the legislature, to the judiciary and to the popular will." Another most important problem is to see that such commitments and the powers sought to be exercised by reason thereof, do not abrogate any constitutional rights or privileges—The size, confusion, and complexity of the American legal scene, compared with the relative simplicity of the British situation," and of other countries where the "States Rights" doctrine has conflicted with federal powers do not enter into the picture, makes our problems more complex. Our constitutional inhibitions against the usurpation by either the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government of the powers conferred upon the other branches of government adds to our problem."

Our present Chief Justice recognizes that administrative law is the product of "a deepening conviction of the impotency of Legislatures with respect to some of the most important departments of law-making. Complaints must be heard, expert investigations conducted, complex situations deliberately and impartially analyzed, and legislative rules intelligently adapted to a myriad of instances falling within a general class."

The challenge to us, in the words of Justice Frankfurter, is, "to fashion—instruments and procedures capable of coping with some of the most perplexing but exigent problems of society." Where legislative or executive policies must be enforced through administrators or boards, there is a wide field for conflict between them and the courts, both seeking to render binding decisions governing personal and property rights.

"The relation of such administrative agencies to the established judiciary, the extent to which such agencies may themselves legislate, the extent to which they may exercise functions formerly belonging to the legislative branch of government, by executing and putting into effect their own awards and decrees, and the extent to which their judgments or findings may supersede or displace litigation formerly conducted in the courts, the kind of evidence which they may lawfully consider in arriving at their findings, their methods of procedure, the finality of their findings and decrees, and the extent to which such agencies may exercise judicial functions, binding upon and free from the control of the judiciary, and the extent of control over such agencies and their findings and decrees that may rightly be exercised by the judiciary—all these present challenges to the brightest intellects to enable us to arrive at a proper solution in this day of rapid complex and radical changes."

We quote from Ballantines Problems in Law, 1927 Edition, as follows: "The last half century has witnessed the rapid growth of tribunals other than courts, designed to deal with new and complex problems of modern government or economic enterprise. Railroad commissions, banking corporations, irrigation and water power boards, licensing boards, workmen's compensation commissions, corporation or 'blue-sky' commissions, are only a partial catalogue of these new organs of government. The present trend toward 'socialization' in field of government promises an increase in their number and their activities.

On January 26, 1935, Hon. Leon Green, Dean of the Law School in Northwestern University, formerly Professor of Law in the University of Texas, speaking before the Dallas Bar Association, said: "When I tell you that the judicial process is being made over into patterns of administration, you know better than I that I am telling the truth, whether we like it or not;" and "thought is rapidly crystallizing, looking to a well integrated court organization with statesmanlike administration at the top;" and "It is highly probable that by the time you have reorganized your court system so that it functions easily, promptly and inexpensively, there will have been developed through the numerous administrative agencies now handling many of the important problems of the day, reliable processes and rules for dealing with those problems so that they can either be thrown back into the courts, or the agencies themselves can be incorporated into the court system. Then we shall witness what most of us are anxious to see—a shift back from administration of law, but law moulded to the purposes of administration." He called the present a "revolutionary period," and said that the task confronting us is "to set up the details of the new processes, keep check upon the working of these processes, and to be ready to offer ways and means for their modification and improvement."

In the case of State vs. Lone Star Gas Company, 86 S. W. 2d, 484, in which a writ of error was refused by the Texas Supreme Court, but which has within the last few weeks been reversed by the Supreme Court of the United States, there is reflected one of the serious problems of administrative law. One contention was "that only the evidence adduced before the Commission on the rate hearing may be considered on an appeal to the court," the other contention being "that the hearing on appeal to the court of such issues is de novo and that 'due process of law' requires submission to a judicial tribunal for determination upon its own independent judgment as to both law and facts, according to the settled rules governing judicial action and decision." "As regard the rate making power of the Commission, the Texas Courts have adopted this wider scope of review," but in most instances, State and Federal, the fact findings of the administrative boards are binding even on the courts, and therein lies the menace to our democratic government, State and National.

Imagine a Chief Executive whose ideals are warped with ideas either too radical or too conservative, attempting to enforce his theories by appointing upon administrative boards those obsessed with the same ideas; and imagine their finding facts without evidence deemed competent in courts, and in such a way as to establish and perpetuate policies of the appointing Executive. If such findings can be based upon political bias and unsworn testimony, and if a new trial in the courts upon facts as well as law can be denied, the situation can become deplorable. The courts, even where bound by the fact findings of a board or commission, now hear evidence to ascertain if the decision of the administrative board was within the powers conferred by the law creating the board, and if any constitutional right has been infringed; but the review by courts should not be so limited, but should be full and complete, upon facts and law.

It thus seems that our courts are the last and only remaining bulwark protecting us from the possibility of tyrannical exercises of all power, executive, legislative and judicial, by political appointees of a Chief Executive. Tragic, indeed, would be our fate if such appointing executive could influence or control our courts, or if our appellate judges should, since in our National Constitution there is no express prohibition thereof, hold that, because of new and complex problems of a growing civilization, administrative agencies, under the control of one Chief Executive, may lawfully and constitutionally exercise all governmental power, legislative, executive and judicial.

There are many necessary administrative agencies, such as the Railway Commission of Texas, with power to prevent exorbitant gas rates being charged thousands of consumers and with other necessary and beneficial powers; but the administrative principle also embodies a menace. Suppose an administrative board, biased in favor of capital, should perpetrate a rank injustice upon laborers by refusing to grant them a living wage. On the other hand, suppose such board grants the laborer exorbitant wages and denies the employer the right to raise rates to a point sufficient to operate without loss. Then suppose they are denied relief in the Courts—I verily believe that the present abnormal growth of administrative boards with powers such as I have mentioned, constitutes a great drawback to business recovery. Business and Capital seem to fear the future.

What, then, can we do to remedy this situation? In the first place, we should cause the general public to see the grave danger to their liberties involved in these matters. In the second place, an awakened public sentiment should demand of those chosen to make their laws that none but absolutely necessary administrative boards be created, that all unnecessary boards be abolished and that their decisions be subject to a new trial in the courts upon fact as well as law. This should restore confidence, remove uncertainties, set in motion the wheels of industry and start a business revival. Third, such awakened public sentiment should militantly uphold our courts in the protection of the constitutional rights and liberties of the people. Capital and labor, each dependent upon the other, should be forced by public sentiment to co-operate, and not try to destroy each other.

The French people have laws, rules and regulations to prevent the injustices inevitably resulting from the improper exercise of authority by administrative agencies.

It may be, as indicated by Leon Green, in his talk before the Dallas Bar Association, Vol. XIII, page 323, of the Texas Law Review, that we are in the midst of a new era in the administration of law, as part of inevitable progress as a great nation, and that, as he intimates, science and philosophy should combine in America, within constitutional limits, to so reform our courts and court procedures as to merge the administrative agencies and our judiciary into one—great and harmoniously united whole, with proper regulations as to procedure, so as to see that right and justice prevail; or it may be that we will be forced to construct, as part of our judicial system, plans like those used in France to supervise administrative agencies.

It has been said that stagnation is death, that all things, to remain alive, must move, either forward or backward, and, in the light of present day developments, the tendency towards centralization of power and towards regimentation of individuals and individual rights, in this day of growth and multiplication of government agencies by leaps and bounds, our duty to ourselves and to our country demands that all citizens, all lawyers, judges and students of law should zealously apply themselves to this problem, now pressing more closely, day by day, to properly solve it.

This is a serious problem, which, if not properly solved, may mean the destruction of those liberties, rights and privileges enjoyed by Americans more than by other peoples, and which constitute our most sacred and precious heritage.

To vest all governmental power in agencies under control of one executive, by whatever name called, constitutes a totalitarian state, whether in Soviet-Russia, Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, or in our own beloved

Country; and unless our citizenship and our courts can, within legal and constitutional limits, solve the problem as to the proper control and relation of such agencies to the courts, with preservation of the right to a jury trial and for a new trial in the courts upon fact issues as well as legal ones, the price for our failure in this regard may be the loss of those personal rights and privileges so dearly purchased by our ancestors upon bloody battlefields. God grant that we may find the right solution.

pressed in choice words of sincere appreciation his thanks for this signal recognition of his record as a young man and as a student. Seated at his left was Douglas Perrin, a friend of high school years. Then followed in order, W. C. Wiese, principal of Yoe High School, and Miss Margaret Bloebaum, member of the high school faculty. At the speaker's table to the right of Dr. Swift sat R. H. Brister, superintendent of Waco schools and in the next seat was E. A. Perrin, superintendent of Cameron schools. Next in order was seated Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Pressley, parents of the honor student and across the table Mrs. R. H. Brister who accompanied her husband to Cameron, occupied a place of honor. Among the 32 attending the luncheon was Guy T. Newton, superintendent of public schools for Milam County.

Superintendent Brister was invited to the luncheon to deliver an address on Rotary. The speech was an inspiring recital of Rotary principles as translated into relationships of business leaders of the community who enlist for membership in Rotary clubs. Mr. Brister told of Rotary interests in the youth of the country and said that one of the outstanding programs of Rotary in the nation today is fostering the companionship of adults with the youth of the nation. He complimented the Cameron Rotary Club on its progress and its gesture of interest in youth as implied in the recognition of Harold Pressley who received the gold watch as a tribute from the club for his achievement as a student in Yoe High School.

The committee to make the award of which Niley Smith is chairman, had charge of the program for the day and made arrangements for the presentation of this, the first annual award of the Cameron Rotary Club. Similar recognition is to be made to a member of the class of 1940 in Yoe High School.

Camp on recommendation of criminal district attorney, Morrison. No bids were taken on the contract. Under a recent ruling by the attorney general only a lawyer is permitted to make such a contract. The district attorney may through his discretion, under the law, limit the contract to a person or persons residing within the county.

During recent years the county at different times retained the services of J. M. Ralston, paying him a salary for his services. Mr. Camp plans to collect the taxes on the most agreeable basis possible and invites those who owe taxes to consult him freely regarding methods of payment. It was said here Wednesday that some misunderstanding had resulted with reference to the thirteen per cent which Mr. Camp is to receive. This amount is to be deducted from the money paid to the county and state and in no way is it to be added to the amount to be paid by those who owe delinquent taxes.

The law automatically places a penalty of ten per cent on delinquent taxes and under the terms of the law other penalties are added. It is said that a considerable volume of delinquent taxes are not collectible, but is estimated that $150,000 in amount is collectible and $19,500 will be paid in collection fees if all taxes are turned into the office of the collector. Mr. Camp is to pay all expenses incident to the collections.

ProclamationCity Clean Up Week

In observance of the annual clean-up week for Cameron during which time citizens and the city government co-operate to achieve a greater degree of civil improvement, I respectfully call the attention of the entire citizenship and home owners to clean-up week which begins in the city on Monday, May 29, and continuing for one week.

The City of Cameron will as has been the practice for a number of years, place at the disposal of the citizens city trucks to haul away all trash and refuse. All cans, trash and rubbish should be placed in containers and left at a convenient place so the trucks may pick it up and haul to the dump grounds. In this way clean-up week can be very effective and the city government respectfully requests all citizens to co-operate.

In addition to clean-up week I respectfully call your attention to the season of the year when mosquitoes are more prevalent. During the week we urge that you make rigid inspection of your premises, drain all cans and containers where water may have fallen from recent rains, and see that all ditches and water holes are drained. In cases where drainage cannot be had, consult the city health officer for methods of disinfecting and killing mosquitoes.

Health conditions will be improved and our city will be a better place in which to live if you will give us your wholehearted co-operation.

CHARLES C. SMITH

Mayor City of Cameron.
